The Spanish Empire in the 16th century

8

The reign of Charles I

Charles I was the first king of the Habsburg dynasty in Spain. He was born in Belgium and he inherited territories in Europe. [1]

- From his maternal grandparents, he inherited territories in Spain, Italy, America and North Africa. As King of Spain, he was called Charles I.
- From his paternal grandparents, he inherited territories in the Netherlands, France and Germany. As Emperor of Germany, he was called Charles V.

When Charles I became King of Spain, he did not know the language or customs of the country. He had foreign counsellors who increased taxes. This caused two rebellions in 1520: the Comunidades in Castile, and the Germanias in Valencia. After this, the king had Spanish counsellors.

Charles I fought against France who wanted to control the north of Italy. He fought against German Protestants to defend Catholicism. He also fought against the Turks who wanted to control territories in the Mediterranean.

1 Charles I.

The reign of Philip II

In 1556, Philip II became king of Spain. He added to the territories in America, Africa and Asia. In 1580, he became King of Portugal. [2]

- In 1557, he defeated the French in the Battle of Saint-Quentin.
- In 1571, he defeated the Turks in the Battle of Lepanto.

Philip II fought a long war against the Netherlands, who wanted independence. The English supported the Netherlands in this war. In 1588, Philip II tried to invade England with a fleet of ships called the Armada. England defeated the Armada.

3 The Spanish Empire during the reigns of Charles I and Philip II.

Territories and government

In the 16th century, Spain became the greatest world power. Charles I and Philip II ruled an empire with territories all over the world. [3]

The king was responsible for the army, institutions, taxes, war and peace. Many counsellors helped the king.

The kings had a lot of power, but there were some limitations on their power.

- There were courts in each kingdom that could accept or reject certain laws.
- Some kingdoms had justice systems to ensure the king kept the laws.

In 1561, Philip II made Madrid the capital of the empire. The government and the court settled there.
